Ryan Guo was first on scene, directing people into the building through the correct entrance. When we got there, we split into two groups: one to inspect and sort frozen foods, and one to place these foods into categorized boxes (deli meats, fully cooked meals, vegetables, etc). Later, when another group left (not from CCC), three people (Frank Miao, Aaron Zhang, Stanley Liu) were sent to make boxes, and everyone moved to putting foods in categorized boxes (group 2). We were very productive and packaged between 1000 and 1400 pounds of food. This was overall an extremely successful event, as we packaged enough food to feed many families. We hope to get an even larger group to go help the less fortunate in our community next time.
